PLANNED GIVING AT GEORGIA ORGANICS

Can you imagine a future in which Georgia's food is produced accessibly, sustainably, and equitably by thriving local farmers?

For Georgia Organics, this our vision and long-term commitment. To make this future a reality, we need long-term support. A simple directive in your will can make your gift and dedication to this future last for generations to come. Even small gifts can have a huge impact over time.

Through a planned gift to Georgia Organics, you're sowing the seeds for a strong local food movement, decreasing inheritance taxes for your family, and ensuring your legacy is rooted in a more resilient Georgia.

Bequests can include:

A gift of a certain amount or percentage of your assets

Assets like stocks, bonds, CDs, real estate, vehicles, art, or jewelry

Naming a nonprofit as the beneficiary of your pension plan, IRA, or life insurance policy

Talk with a financial advisor and attorney about how a charitable bequest can support your personal and financial goals. When you're ready to put your planned giving plan into action, please reach out to Amber Suitt, Director of Fundraising and Strategic Impact, to discuss joining our Heirloom Society.

We're grateful for your interest in planned giving and securing the future of a strong local food system for lifetimes to come!
